But they have also a sort of retributive right of grumbling; since all creation considers it to move for months yet, either for the State or the an especial and indisputable right to find fault with National Canvass. The more time there is left for editors, why should not editors have a right to find cool judgment and mature reflection, the more will and construction among the little, unsuspecting in- stances, to acquiesce in the late decision of the peofault with all creation.

But in good sooth, we believe there are more disa greeable, unpleasant and disheartening circumstances act under any temporary or fictitious name, and do connected with the establishment of a new paper, than with almost any other business under the sun, and yet there are people in this world, whose circumstances require no such awful sacrifice, who yet are ineditorial chair. From the N. O. Delta. To my Wife-BY JOSEPH BRENAN. Come to me, dearest,-I'm lonely without thee-Day-time and night-time I'm thinking about thee, Night-time and day-time, in dreams I behold thee-Unwelcome the waking which ceases to fold thee; Come to me, darling, my sorrows to lighten, Come, in thy beauty to bless and to brighten, Come, in thy womanhood, meekly and lowly, Come, in thy lovingness, queenly and holy!

Swallows will flit round the desolate ruin, Telling of Spring and its joyous renewing, And thoughts of thy love and its manifold treasure Are circling my heart with a promise of pleasure. O, Spring of my spirit, O, May of my bosom, Shine out on my soul 'till it bourgeon and blossom, The waste of my Life has a rose-root within it, And thy fondness alone to the sunshine can win it.

Figure-that moves like a song thro' the Even-Features-lit up by a reflex of Heaven-Eyes, like the skies of poor Erin, our mother, Where sunshine and shadow are chasing each other ; Smiles coming seldom, but childlike and simple And opening their eyes from the heart of a dimple-O, thanks to the Saviour, that even thy seeming Is left to the exile to brighten his dreaming. You have been glad when you knew I was gladdened-

Dear, are you sad now, to hear I am saddened ? Our hearts ever answer in tune and in time, love, As octave to octave and rhyme unto rhyme, love, I cannot weep but your tears will be flowing, You cannot smile but my cheek will be glowing-I could not die without you at my side, love, You will not linger when I will have died, love. Come to me, dear, ere I die of my sorrw,

Rise on my gloom like the Sun of to-morrow, Strong, swift, and fond as the words which I speak, love, With a song at your lip and a smile on your cheek, love, Come, for my heart in your absence is weary-Haste, for my spirit is sickened and dreary, Come to the arms which alone should caress thee. Come to the heart which is throbbing to press thee. "A Roland for an Oliver."

FASTIDIOUS TASTE .- An amusing little incident occurred at the Wright House last evening. A verdantooking chap sat down to take "some fillin"," as Joe Snuff, &c. Lawson would say, and in due time a waiter presented himself at the back of our hero's chair, and inquired: " Tea or coffee, sir ?"

"What kind of tea!" Greeny looked up in the waiter's face, and, with considerable emphasis, said, " Why store-tea of course; don't want your blamed sassafras stuff "
